ANYTHING BUT ROUTINE:

A Selectively Annotated Bibliography of William S. Burroughs 5.0

PREFACE to v. 5.0

I had intended/hoped for the fifth edition of Anything but Routine to have been completed in 2022, in time to observe the 25th anniversary of William S. Burroughs' passing. Sadly, circumstances overtook me and I missed that anniversary by a year. Sorry, Bill!

This 5th ed. is extensively revised from its predecessor, 2016's v. 4.0. First and foremost, it now includes a "Chronology of the Life and Works" of WSB, a chronology I spent the better part of a year researching. If anyone spots an error in this new section, please do let me know. The research I carried out preparing the chronology resulted, in turn, in substantial addition of new annotations to bibliographic entries throughout.

While all of the sections have been expanded, I have paid particular attention in this edition to sections A, C, D, and E. Section A (BOOKS, BROADSIDES, AND PAMPHLETS) now documents eBook availability where possible. This is likewise true of Section D (FOREIGN TRANSLATIONS), as translations of WSB's work in print and electronic formats have proliferated substantially in the last seven years, especially from Turkey and the countries of Eastern Europe.

In Section C, I have made a concerted effort where possible to disambiguate the roughly dozen different instances of the piece titled "Abstract" that Burroughs published in several different periodicals by including the first lines of their text in each of their individual bibliographic entries. Cf. C228 and C231, for example.

Section E has now been sub-divided into Sound Recordings and Audio Books as the latter, too, have proliferated in the last several years. In the Sound Recordings portion of the section, for entries attributed solely to Burroughs, I have taken pains to identify excerpts from Naked Lunch where possible. In entries for Burroughs and other performers, I have identified all tracks by Burroughs.

Quantitatively, v. 5.0 includes 1,575 numbered entries as compared to the 1,271 numbered entries in v 4.0., an increase of almost 24%. The bibliography now includes a total of 2,344 items.

EDITING NOTES: Where present, measurements have all now been converted to centimeters, rounded up to the nearest full cm. Unfortunately, the font I use in the manuscript (my beloved Garamond) does not render certain diacritics in certain languages. Apologies!

INTRODUCTION

The bibliography of William S. Burroughs is as challenging as the man was himself. He wrote voluminously and kaleidoscopically. He rearranged, recycled, and reiterated obsessively. He produced across five decades and four continents. He was a novelist, a poet, an essayist, and a correspondent at home in all media. He never met a "little magazine" or an interviewer he wouldn't share with.

There have been a few attempts at documenting the range of Burroughs' prodigious output over the years—some better than others. I initially conceived of this bibliography as an update of Joe Maynard's and Barry Miles' definitive William S. Burroughs: A Bibliography, 1953–73: Unlocking Inspector Lee's Word Hoard (University of Virginia, 1978). Readers familiar with Maynard and Miles (referred to herein as M&M) will know that this bibliography differs somewhat from that in scope, as it does in organization and in the kind and quantity of detail in- or excluded. These differences notwithstanding, my hope is that the two will be found to complement one another, to which end I have made a systematic effort to explicitly link the entries in Maynard and Miles to those in my own bibliography when such entries appear in both.

For verification purposes, I have personally examined the great majority of items described in the bibliography. In a few instances, I have gotten by with a little help from my friends: booksellers, collectors, and librarians. In fewer instances still, the hunt continues—as I imagine, and hope, it will.

The A section of this bibliography details Burroughs' publications in book, broadside, and pamphlet form. Foreign titles are included only if they have no English-language analogue (e.g., A16) or represent the first publication of a particular title (e.g., A34a). Entries are arranged chronologically, then alphabetically by title.

The B section details Burroughs' art books (several of which were co-authored) and catalogs of exhibitions of his art. This section has no analogue in Maynard and Miles, and substitutes for their own B section: "Contributions to Books and Anthologies" (which are excluded from the present work). Entries are arranged chronologically, then alphabetically by author, then alphabetically by title.

The C section details Burroughs' many hundreds of contributions to periodicals. In this section, I have made a particular effort to rationalize some of the most complex elements of Burroughs' bibliography, including the "publications within publications" The Burrough and The Moving Times. Entries are arranged chronologically, then alphabetically by periodical title.

Section D details foreign translations of Burroughs' work. Entries are arranged alphabetically by English-language title, then alphabetically by language of translation.

Section E details Burroughs' own sound recordings, and his contributions to or appearances on those by others. It also includes audio versions of various of Burroughs' works, some read by Burroughs himself and many read by others. Entries are arranged alphabetically by artist, then alphabetically by title.

Section F details the video formats in which Burroughs' early film work has been made available, along with various of Burroughs' readings and other Burroughs-related material that have also been made available as video recordings. Entries are arranged alphabetically by title.

Section G details various miscellaneous items which, while most are not by Burroughs, are nevertheless relevant in and to his bibliography. Entries are arranged alphabetically by author, then alphabetically by title.

Section H details biographies of, interviews with, and letters by Burroughs; Section I details bibliographies and criticism of him. Bibliographic and critical works are included only if issued as stand-alone publications, and only if they deal exclusively with Burroughs or if he is named in the title. Entries in both sections are arranged alphabetically by author, then alphabetically by title.

SOURCES CONSULTED

In compiling Anything but Routine, I have made extensive use of many, if not most, of the other Burroughs bibliographies, in addition to a number of auction and bookseller catalogs. These have proven invaluable, especially insofar as the annotations were concerned. I have found particularly useful the following, to which the reader will find occasional attribution throughout; abbreviations used for attribution purposes are noted below.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS AND THANKS

A great number of individuals—librarians, booksellers, collectors, publishers—have helped me to assemble both my own Burroughs collection and this bibliography over the years. I am grateful to each and every one. They have made the endeavor not only possible, but genuinely pleasurable! All thanks to them for their contributions; all blame to me alone for errors either of omission or commission. [NOTE: Institutional affiliations were current at the time of consultation.]

A26. The Wild Boys: A Book of the Dead.

- "Originally, I had planned a book called Academy 23 which would have combined the material that appeared with the wild boy material in The Job. After talking with Daniel Odier about that book in the spring of 1968, I abandoned this plan when I decided to assemble the material for The Job in a separate book." —Miles Associates (1973): p. 143. [See Section I below]
- "There was a huge amount of wild boys material. In addition to the book itself, it overflowed into The Revised Boy Scout Manual [see below]...; an illustrated book with Malcolm McNeill [sic] called Ah Puch Is Here (published as Ah Pook Is Here without its illustrations [see below]); and Port of Saints [see below], which is really Wild Boys II ... He [Burroughs] often said that the first section of The Wild Boys should not have been included as it had no relation to the rest of book, and it should be combined with Port of Saints to make a true Wild Boy book." —Miles (2014): p. 480. - A28. Mayfair Acadamy [sic] Series <More or Less>. Brighton, England: Urgency Press Rip-Off, [1973?]. Staplebound (no hardbound issued). {M&M A25a}
 - Limited to 650 copies printed on different colored papers.
 - Collects ten "Bulletins ... written as part of a series entitled "The Burroughs Acadamy' [sid] for the magazine Mayfair. None of them have been reprinted elsewhere. And since the back issues are not readily available, this is why they are being reprinted here. The rest of the series has appeared in The Job and The Wild Boys. [See above and Sections C and H below.] For a fuller printing history see App[endage] One ['bibliography']. App[endage] Two consists of related articles [by Burroughs] from other mags."—p. 2.

A29. Port of Saints.

- "… really Wild Boys II …"—Miles (1992): p. 180. [See Section H below]
- A. Limited 1st ed. London: Covent Garden Press Limited; Ollon, Switzerland: Am Here Books, 1973 [i.e., 1975]. Hardbound in dustjacket.
 - Limited to 200 copies, including 100 numbered copies signed by Burroughs and issued in publisher's slipcase.
 - "The t.p. says 1973, but publication was delayed by the London paper shortage." [Miles]
 - "… formed mainly of work relating to the Wild Boys and unpublished sections of a WSB scrapbook." [Am Here 6 One]

- B. 1st [American] ed. Berkeley, Calif.: Blue Wind Press, 1980. Hardbound in dustjacket, and softbound.
 - Lacks the illustrations in the Covent Garden/Am Here ed. (above).
 - "This new edition ... has been extensively rewritten and revised by the author."—T.p. verso.
 - > Hardbound ed. includes 200 numbered copies signed by Burroughs and issued in publisher's slipcase.
 - "All copies of the signed limited edition were issued in dustjackets with the upper left-hand corner clipped off since the printed price was correct only for the hardbound trade edition and incorrect for the limited edition. They were clipped and sold at a higher price." [Shoaf (eBay listing)]
 - "The publisher reports that when the first printing hardcover sold out, they were getting ready to do the fourth printing of the softcover. So the second printing of the hardcover is actually labeled 'fourth printing.' There were some leftover dust jackets from the first printing, so those were used with the 'fourth printing' until they ran out. The 'fourth printing' hardcover was still available from the publisher as late as 2002 but without the dust jacket." [Shoaf 1]
- C. London: John Calder, 1983, [©]1980. Hardbound in dustjacket, and softbound.
- A30. White Subway. London: Aloes seolA [i.e., Aloes Books], 1973. Softbound (no hardbound issued). {M&M A24a}
 - First printing limited to 1,000 copies, including 25 numbered copies signed by Burroughs.
 - Second printing (also 1973) limited to 500 copies, with silver-gray covers. Per BeatBooks 42, includes variant issue, omitting title and author on upper wrapper and printing statement on lower wrapper.
 - > Third printing: [1973 or 1974?], also included perfect-bound variant binding.

A31. The Book of Breething [= Le Livre des Respirations = Het Boek der Ademhalingen]

- A. _____. Drawings by Bob Gale. In English, French, and Dutch; French translation by Jean Chopin; Dutch translation by Jo Verbrugghen. Ingatestone, Essex, England: OU-Editions, 1974. Softbound (no hardbound issued).
 - "… limited to 400 copies, num[b]ered as follows: 50 copies marked from I to L, signed by the author in de luxe presentation; 350 copies num[b]ered from 1 to 350 printed on paper Hollands van Gelder."— Colophon.
 - Per BeatBooks 36, none of the 350 copies were actually numbered and, per an eBay listing from Red Snapper Books (London), there is "the possibility that most copies were not distributed at publication."
- B. The Book of Breeething. Illustrations by Robert F. Gale. 1st [American] ed. ("An Overdrive Book") Berkeley, Calif.: Blue Wind Press, 1975. Hardbound (issued without dustjacket), and softbound.

A32. Snack ... With Eric Mottram. London: Aloes Books, 1975. Staplebound

(no hardbound issued).

- > Title on cover: Snack ...: Two Tape Transcripts.
- Contains the transcript of a radio broadcast made in 1964 by Mottram, including passages of Burroughs reading from his work, and the transcript of a conversation in 1973 between Burroughs, Mottram, Jim Pennington [the publisher], and Graham Dawes.
- "Part of this transcript [the first] appeared in Les Langues Modernes, Paris, 1965, with an introduction by Pierre Dommergues."—p. 2.

- A33. Cobble Stone Gardens. 1st ed. Cherry Valley, N.Y.: Cherry Valley Editions, 1976. Hardbound (issued without dustjacket), and softbound.
 - * "A more important book than one might first suppose." [Am Here 62]
 - "A mixture of autobiographical fiction about the author's youth and family in St. Louis and material drawn from Naked Lunch and The Wild Boys." [BeatBooks 51]
 - ➤ "50 copies hand bound by Michael Scott Cain numbered and signed by the author."—[p. 54]
 - "Although the colophon calls for ... [the hardbound ed.] ... to be numbered, we don't believe any copies actually were." [Skyline]

A34. The Retreat Diaries. With The Dream of Tibet by Allen Ginsberg. (City Moon Broadcast; No. 3) New York: City Moon, 1976. Staplebound (no hardbound issued).

- "Printed in an edition of 2,000 copies with a limited edition of 100 [numbered/lettered and] wrapt [sit] in a color jacket, 26 of them signed and numbered [i.e., lettered] by the author."—T.p. verso.
- The "color jacket" is a manila-colored clasp envelope with a die cut window in the front, behind which is affixed a sticker that reads: "The cover lettering for this limited edition of one hundred copies ... is from the handwriting of the Author, William S. Burroughs."
- Based on the dream journal Burroughs kept during a two-week solitary retreat he undertook in 1975 at a Buddhist center.

A35. The Third Mind. With Brion Gysin.

- > "Portions of this book appeared during the years 1960-73, in slightly different form ..."—T.p. verso.
- "… intended to have more than a hundred collages executed by Bill [Burroughs] and Brion [Gysin], using a grid system that Brion had worked out as the visual base … [but when published] it lacked most of its illustrations."—Miles (1992): p. 163. [See Section H below]
- Miles Associates (1973): p. 139 [see Section I below] suggests that The Book of Methods may have been this work's intended subtitle.
- A. Oeuvre Croisée. French translation by Gérard-Georges Lemaire and Christine Taylor. (Connections) Paris: Flammarion, 1976. Softbound.
 - True 1^{st} ed.
 - "Material on cut-ups, fold-ins, tape recorder experiments, and film. Originally conceived in the Chelsea Hotel in 1964-65 ..." [BeatBooks 65]
- B. The Third Mind. [1st American ed.]. New York: Viking Press, 1978. Hardbound in dustjacket (no softbound issued).

- A38. Ah Pook Is Here, and Other Texts.
 - ▶ "... Ah Pook Is Here, a text for unpublished illustrations ..."—Ansen (1986), p. 39. [See Section H below]
 - A. London: John Calder, 1979. Hardbound in dustjacket.
 - Contains the texts of Ah Pook Is Here, The Book of Breeething, and Electronic Revolution (above).
 - "Ab Pook Is Here was originally planned as a picture book modelled on the surviving Mayan codices. Malcolm McNeill [sid] was to do the illustrations, and I [Burroughs] was to provide the text … However, owing partly to the expense of full-color reproduction, and because the book falls into neither the category of the conventional illustrated book nor that of a comix publication, there have been difficulties with the arrangements for the complete work … Finally Malcolm McNeill [sid] and I have decided to publish the text without the artwork, still in hopes of seeing the eventual publication of this work that has been eight years in preparation."—Preface.
 - The illustrations by Mc Neill for Ah Pook Is Here were published, without the text, in The Lost Art of Ah Pook Is Here: Images from the Graphic Novel (Seattle: Fantagraphics Books, 2012; see Section G below).

 - "This new edition of Queer is based substantially on the same sources as the 1985 edition ... the most significant differences lie not in the text itself but in its presentation ... First, I have preserved a little more of the roughness in Burroughs' manuscript, not making a number of very small corrections ... And second, as well as reediting and retitling the epilogue (now, "Two Years Later: Mexico City Return"), and re-creating the 'Panama' chapter (chapter 7), I have made a number of short insertions of material that was either previously unused or unavailable—roughly five hundred words in the notes and just over a thousand in the text."—Introduction.
